CPSIA Statement

February 18, 2014

To Whom It May Concern:

The Consumer Product Safety Improvement Act (CPSIA) was passed by the US Congress on August 14, 2008. This new law expands current Consumer Product Safety Committee authority and creates new responsibilities for those who make, distribute and sell consumer products. This new law also created new regulations for “Children’s products.”

Among the provisions of the CPSIA was a change in the acceptable levels of Lead (Pb) in Paint and surface coatings for all consumer products – the standard was lowered to less than 90ppm of Lead effective August 2009. The Magnet Groups products with painted surfaces are and will continue to be compliant with the applicable rules. The bulk of this statute referred to ‘children’s product’ meaning a consumer product designed or intended primarily for children 12 years of age or younger. While all items featured in any of The Magnet Group catalogs are designed to meet applicable Federal regulations, they are not designed for, or intended for use by children 12 years of age or younger. As of August 2011, accessible substrates of any children’s product may not contain more than 100ppm of Lead.
